In questions of war and peace the G8 does not command the legitimacy of the UN Security Council but, for the international community, is a more acceptable vehicle than unilateral action. As such the G8 can be seen as a noteworthy "second best" option after the UN Security Council.

The G8 is, however, not without its weaknesses in the field of international peace and security. As an informal group it has no crisis management capabilities, nor any long-term policy-making capabilities. It suffers from a lack of institutional memory and the absence of a formal consultative structure. In questions of war and peace, the G8 is a noteworthy second best option. It does not
